

Hearthloop

Refill-at-home cleaning for small apartments.
Seed round, 2026.

DEMO SAMPLE by Edgex. Hearthloop is a fictional company. All numbers are placeholders, not real data.

The problem

- Renters in small apartments buy bulky plastic cleaning bottles they have no room to store.
- Most of those bottles are used once and thrown away.
- Refill shops exist, but they need a trip and planning ahead.

Small homes, big bottles, and no easy way to refill.

Our solution

Today

- Bulky single-use bottles
- Store runs or heavy deliveries
- Storage space eaten up

With Hearthloop

- 4 glass bottles, kept for life
- Flat, letterbox-sized refill pouches
- Mix with tap water in a minute

How it works

1

Pick a kit

Choose a starter kit of four bottles.

2

Set a schedule

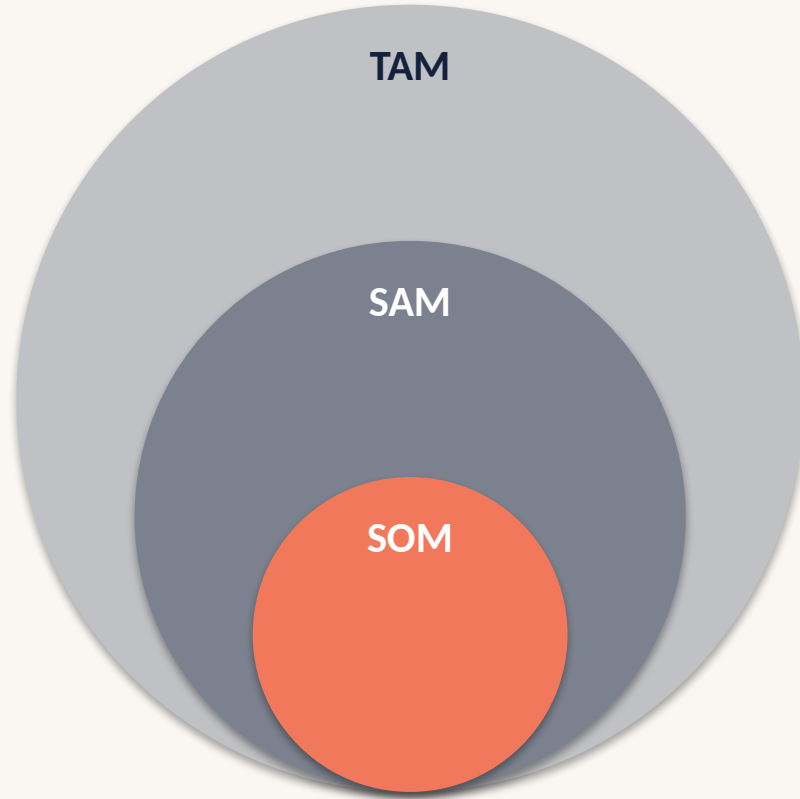

Choose scents and how often refills arrive.

3

Refill at home

Pouches fit the letterbox. Skip or pause anytime.

Market (placeholder)

TAM $[X]B

Household cleaning products, US. Placeholder.

SAM $[Y]M

Online refill buyers in dense cities. Placeholder.

SOM $[Z]M

Realistic 3-year share. Placeholder.

DEMO: in a real order every figure here is taken from a cited public source, linked in the speaker notes.

Traction (placeholder)

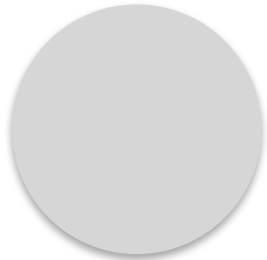

DEMO numbers only.
In a real order, the client supplies every traction figure.

Competition

	Format	Entry price	Small-space fit
Blueland	Dissolvable tablets	Tablets from $0.32	One bottle per product
Branch Basics	Liquid concentrate	Kits about $75-$125	Several bottles
Cleancult	Refill cartons	Bottles from $4.99	Cartons still single-use
Hearthloop (demo)	Letterbox pouches	[client sets]	Built for small homes

Competitor prices from public pages found 2026-09-25 (blueland.com, branchbasics.com, cleancult.com). Hearthloop row is fictional.

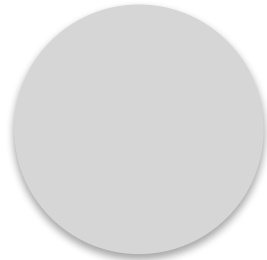

Team (placeholder)

[Founder name]

CEO

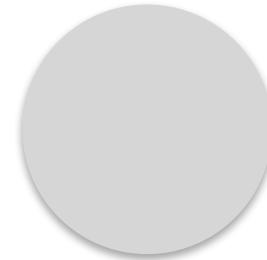

Client supplies real background.

[Co-founder]

Operations

Client supplies real background.

[Advisor]

Advisor

Client supplies real background.

The ask

$[amount]

Use of funds

Product and packaging 40%

First marketing tests 35%

Operations 25%

DEMO SAMPLE by Edgex. Fictional company; placeholder numbers.